Kendi oil

Certified organic sensory oil rich in omega 3

Crafted by green technology

Focus on the product

Kendi oil is a certified organic oil (Ecocert standard) rich in omega 3 and γ -tocopherol, obtained from an Indonesian tree, Aleurites moluccana. Kendi oil improves the sensory dimension of cosmetic formulations through its unique organoleptic properties.

A sensory travel in the heart of Indonesia

Kendi oil is a virgin oil extracted from the nuts of Aleurites moluccana, a tree that naturally grows in Indonesia, especially in the Celebes archipelago, also called Sulawesi.

The production is located in the south of Sulawesi in two places, far away from pollution and tourism: Selayar Island and Marros.

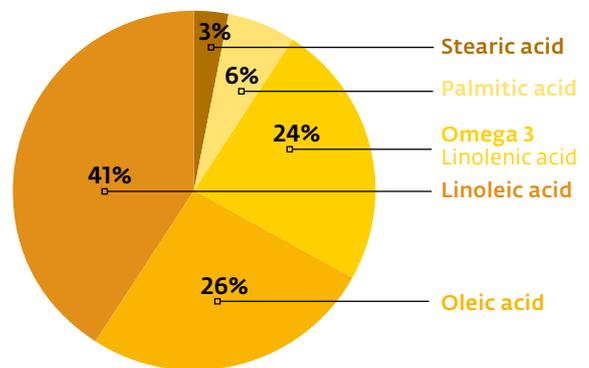

Ethical sourcing

Kendi oil is a high quality virgin oil obtained by a cold pressure process. The production process of Kendi oil involves the local communities and has been developed following a fully ecological approach. Fruits are manually collected and the trees are preserved.

This project helps the economic development of the island. Aleurites cultures are an essential income for the communities that traditionally live from local resources (coffee, rice, cacao).

Composition

Aleurites moluccana oil is different from other vegetable oils because it is very rich in fatty acids and more specifically in linolenic acid. It contains 40 to 45% of total lipids.

Sensory analysis (panel test)

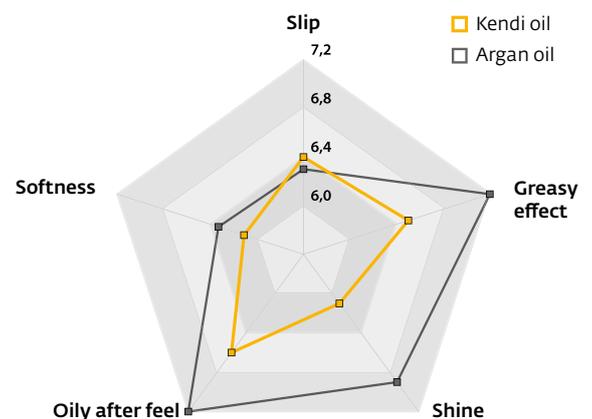

A panel (10 volunteers) applied Kendi oil and argan oil on the legs, and described their sensory profiles during the massage.

Kendi oil penetrates quickly with a dry after feel.

Kendi oil has a good non greasy slip and leaves the skin softer but not shiny.

Kendi oil is a stable, colorless and odorless dry oil.

70% of the panel preferred Kendi oil to argan oil for massage applications.
